INVITES NATIONS ON OWN AUTHORITY

Bartholdt Tells How He Pro cured Interparliamentary Meeting for St. Louis.

STRIDE IN CAUSE OF PEACE.

Congressman Says All Other Nations Look With Hope and Expectancy for United States to Take the Lead.

Mohawk, N. Y., June 3.-The leading speakers to-day before the Arbitration enference were Justice Brewer of the United States Supreme Court and Congressman Bartholdt of Missouri, who organized in Congress last winter a group of he Interparliamentary Union.

The Interparliamentary Union will hold its next meeting in St. Louis in September, and Mr. Bartholdt said that when in Vienna last year he extended the invitation for this meeting he did so entirely without authority. In part he said: BARTHOLDT SPEAKS.

I had to fall back on the great American some of hinf, and fortunately the bluff was not called. The delegates from Denmark, who had presented an official invitation from their Parliament and a written guarantee from their Government of a large entertainment fund, erence decided unanimously to hold this year's meeting in the United States. But while the delegates were cheering I suddenly realized the size of the elephant on my hands, and I do not exactly remember how I came back to the United States-by steamer, rail or other con-

Veyance.

Night and day I saw nothing but that elephant, until I called upon President Rosseveit, whom I felt like hugging when he readily consented to help me "make good" by calling attention to the importance of the impending conference in his next message to Congress. You know he has kept his word. Then came the organization of the American group and the passage by Congress of my Joint resolution extending an orficial notation to the European of the union, and making an appropriation of the Union, and making an appropriation of the Union, and making an appropriation of the world is now an assured fact.

LOOK TO UNITED STATES.

There is no question but what all other na-

There is no question but what all other na nited States. They feel how thoroughly it outld accord with our political institutions if the American Government would take the lead thing question and call, for instance, a second ongress similar to that at The Hague, with view to the negotiation of arbitration treaties etween the different countries and to the enewal of the discussion of the reduction of mannents. This, indeed, will be the proposition of the American group at the St. Louis unference and a concurrent resolution is always pending in Congress, requesting the resident to convenents.

"Where's your license?" asked the policeman.

Don Juan pointed to the Government stamp. "That don't go here." said the policeman, pointing to Fernado's clears, telling him to pack them up. It was only by means of signs that the Spaniard was made to understand that the policeman did not want any of the clears. Then McElligott's troubles began. The Spaniard could not or would not understand that he was under arrest, and mumbled repeatedly in Spanish that he had done nothing wrong.

He was finally taken to the police station, where a Spanish interpreter was found and matters were explained. He was locked up while the interpreter went to hunt up friends of the Spaniard who would pay the costs of a license to save him from being fined.
